Washington—Preparedness of which so much was heard first from Republican spokesmen and later from Democratic spokesmen, is now being rebuffed by the Harding administration. Secretary Hughes in his formal invitation to Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan to a conference on reduction of armament has enunciated a doctrine which the liberal element has been preaching for years only to be derided by their opponents.

Armament, in the opinion of Mr. Hughes, is "not only without economic justification but is a constant menace to the peace of the world rather than an assurance of its preservation."

There is a school of thought even in the Harding administration which doesn't agree with that theory and in congress, to be sure, there always has been an element which like the National Security League and kindred organizations insisted that the surest preventative for war was preparedness. The naval and military expenditures of the United States government have been variously defended on the ground that it was necessary to arm against potential foes but the Harding administration through the Hughes note to the powers has reverted to Woodrow Wilson's theory which is that armaments should be reduced to a point consistent with domestic safety—that armaments should be large enough only to exercise domestic police power and that navies should be simply coast guards.

Sequel to Bomb Tests
But the decision of the Harding administration as reflected in the Hughes note, insists that armaments are a "constant menace to the peace of the world rather than an assurance of its preservation" is really a sequel to the latest tests whereby bombing from airplanes was plainly shown to be a danger to the capital ships which might in the future prove conclusively the waste in the enormous burden of naval armaments. Some hint of this is given in Mr. Hughes' further declaration that "it may also be advisable to formulate proposals by which in the interests of humanity the use of new agencies of warfare may be reasonably controlled."

In other words the use of the airplane in dropping bombs has revolutionized warfare and the next war, unless absolutely governed by rules between the powers involved, will mean an era of unparalleled destruction. The impossibility of getting respect for established rules of warfare was demonstrated in the last war and rather than face the discouraging prospect of trying to regulate a war while it is in progress, the American government at least believes that the imperative course is to take steps as will prevent a colossal conflict. It is admitted that the white race cannot stand another war like that which began in 1914. The United States government has not limited the invitations to a discussion of naval armament but has asked that all manner of armament be reduced and that all sources of misunderstanding be removed not merely in the Far East but throughout the world.

Follow Wilson Lead
The significance of this broad statement is just dawning on official Washington for it means that the Harding administration has embarked on the seas of international diplomacy in an effort to accomplish what was left incomplete under the last administration—a definite agreement to end wars. Mr. Hughes pointedly wrote that "it is quite clear there can be no final assurance of peace and the prospect of reduced armaments is not a hopeful one unless this desire finds expression in a practical effort to remove causes of misunderstanding and to seek ground for agreement as to principles and their application."

While it is stoutly denied that the United States intends to set up a rival to the league of nations, the expectation here is that the disarmament conference will soon develop the necessity of a broad understanding on the subject of preserving peace and that Mr. Harding's ideas for an association with the other nations of the world will find a natural outlet at the November conference.

SLEUTHS BOMB BUILDERS IN ORDER TO GET JOBS

By United Press Leased Wire
St. Paul, Minn.—Bomb outrages against contractors in the Twin cities have been perpetrated by private detectives who are trying to intimidate them, police said Saturday.

Chief of Police Cropp said arrests would be made as a result of the bombing of the home of F. C. Norlander Thursday night. Several private detectives came here from Chicago during the building trades lockout, it was said, and tried to hire out to contractors to protect their properties. The contractors refused to employ them, police said, and as a result the detectives tried bombings to lead the contractors to believe union men conspired against them.

By United Press Leased Wire
Calgary, Alberta—"I am willing to go back and tell all I know to George Neumen, district attorney."

That was as near as Dr. R. M. Brumfield, former dentist of Roseburg, Oregon, would come to discussing murder charges against him Saturday.

He admitted his identity as Chief of Police Ritchie in his cell here. Dr. Brumfield is accused of having shot Dennis Russell on the night of July 12, placed the body in his automobile, wrecked it, set fire to it and blew Russell's head off with a stick of dynamite in an attempt to destroy identity. He is accused of having placed one of his rings on Russell's hand and to have placed part of his clothing on the dead man.

Drumfield carried $27,000 insurance. His wife identified Russell's body as that of her husband.

Brumfield was arrested by Detective David Richardson, Detective Sergeant Vaughn of the Mounted police on the farm of A. Yader, near Dowinton, 30 miles south of here, yesterday at noon. The authorities were waiting at the barn when Brumfield returned from the field. At first he contended he was Norman C. Whitney, the name under which the secured work as a plowman.

WHITE HOUSE SAYS
RICH WILL PAY BIG
SHARE OF U. S. TAX

Statement Denies Charge That Tax Law Is Designed to Aid Wealthy.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C.—The larger share of taxes under the administration's revenue revision program, will fall on those who are most able to pay, according to a statement issued at the White house Saturday, defending President Harding's position against criticism from various quarters.

There has been no effort to reduce only the taxes of the rich, it was insisted. On the contrary, the administration is bent on seeing that every class bears its proportionate share of the taxes and that frauds and evasions possible under the existing law are made impossible, the White house said.

"The aim was to establish methods that would raise the needed revenue within reasonable certainty, that would make collection sure and inexpensive and that would properly adjust the burden among all classes of the community," the statement said.

It is felt that higher important progress has been made along these lines.

No One Will Escape
"The social and economic bearings of the new proposals are significant. There has been no effort to relieve the rich of their share of the burdens, but rather to insure that no class will be left an avenue of escape from those."

A casual analysis of the proposals shows that what may be described as $1,800,000,000 of the balance will be distributed over the entire community, rich and poor, the rich being certain, because they are proportionately the greatest consumers, to pay a proportionately much greater share.

"In short," the statement concluded, "the whole tax reform program contemplates freeing business from what have been found paralyzing and exasperating restrictions, encouraging the utmost resumption of enterprise and business, removing every possible barrier to expansion and fraud and distributing the tax burden with the greatest possible equity among all classes of people, keeping in mind the purpose to impose the larger share on those best able to pay."

By United Press Leased Wire
Paris—The supreme council, in its final session Saturday, again reached a deadlock—this time over the question of allied evacuation of German territory.

Lord Curzon, British foreign minister, urged the immediate evacuation of the Dusseldorf and Ruhr areas and the raising of the Rhine customs barrier, maintaining that Germany had sufficiently proved her good faith in acceptance of the recent allied ultimatum.

Premier Briand vigorously opposed him, insisting on continuing the occupation until Germany has given better proofs.

OSHKOSH MAYOR'S
WIFE WINS DIVORCE

Fond du Lac, Wis.—Mrs. Alma McHenry was this afternoon granted a divorce from her husband, A. C. McHenry, mayor of Oshkosh, in the circuit court of that city on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

By a division of the property, Mrs. McHenry received the household furniture and the sum of two thousand dollars to be paid in monthly installments of $75.

Before his election as mayor under the commission form, Mr. McHenry was pastor of the Universalist church at Oshkosh. He was candidate for the United States senate at the last election, running on a personal liberty platform. He was defeated by Lenroot.

Mrs. McHenry charged her husband was addicted to the use of liquor and that he frequently scolded her and used profane language in her presence.

WOMAN OFFERS SELF
AS HESLIN WITNESS

By United Press Leased Wire
San Francisco, Calif.—Doris Shirley, one of the two missing women in the investigation of the murder of Father Patrick Heslin, walked into the police station Saturday and introduced herself to the authorities.

She was accompanied by Lee Putnam, of Fresno. He said he intended to marry Miss Shirley.

Miss Shirley told the police that details of William Hightower's story were incorrect. Hightower, held as a suspect, was the man who led police to Father Heslin's grave.

She denied, police said, Hightower's alleged statement that he had introduced Miss Shirley to Dolly Mason in front of a San Francisco cafe several days ago.

Police said they were becoming convinced that Dolly Mason is a mythical character.

State Finds More Evidence to Mysterious Murder.

HUSBAND PROMISES AID

Suspected Man Losing Bravado as State Weaves Net of Evidence.

Los Angeles, Calif.—The defense will demand that Arthur C. Burch and Madalynne Obenchain, indicted for the murder of John Belton Kennedy be tried together, it was intimated Saturday.

Previously it has been thought probable that each would demand a separate trial in order that the verdict in the case of the one would not conflict with the other, and that the same jury would not sit in both cases.

Apparently, however, both Burch and Madalynne are willing to share their fate and trust to a common verdict.

Los Angeles, Calif.—The district attorney's office has produced a witness to testify that Arthur C. Burch threatened the life of John Belton Kennedy previous to the time Kennedy was murdered, it developed here Saturday.

The witness is Mrs. James C. Warren, wife of a Santa Barbara, Calif. banker.

Mrs. Warren became acquainted with Burch on a Los Angeles bound transcontinental train.

"I'm going out there to see that a certain party treats a friend of mine right. If he doesn't I'm going to 'beat' him."

This is the statement Mrs. Warren is said to have informed the district attorney's office that Burch committed in her during the trip.

"Am coming at once. Keep strength."

This was the simple message of promise and encouragement received by Madalynne Obenchain early Saturday from her former husband, Ralph R. Obenchain, now residing westward on a transcontinental limited.

Spirit Is Revived
Madalynne visibly recovered her spirits and poise on receipt of the telegram, the first definite assurance that the man whom she deserted for love of another was still steadfast.

Burch on the other hand, appeared shaken and more worried, as he stood after a strand in the net of circumstantial evidence was being woven about him.

He still refused to make any comment, though it is apparent that he no longer regards the affair in the semi-jocular attitude he first adopted. He was morose today, with the lines in his face deepened.

Word from the Santa Fe train on which Obenchain is coming here was that the course he would advise his wife to follow depended on the conversation he had with her on his arrival. Obenchain is an attorney and it is probable he will be associated in the defense of his former wife.

With Obenchain was Rev. A. W. Burch of Evanston, Ill., father of Arthur Burch. Word reaching here shows his faith in his son's innocence still holds.

Still Seeking Motive
Meanwhile authorities with an accumulation of circumstantial evidence were still trying to find a motive that might have led Burch to kill Kennedy.

This motive, it is believed, will come with a revelation of Mrs. Obenchain's relations to Burch and this relation may be brought to light if she decides to tell all she knows.

As the state redoubled its efforts to link the links of evidence with which it hopes to convict the pair, its case stood:

Mrs. Obenchain—Admits she was with Kennedy at the time of the "midnight murder." No witnesses have appeared to back her statement that he was shot down by mysterious figures. Letters found indicate she was in love with Kennedy who was reluctant about marrying her. Admits she sent for Burch to come to Los Angeles. Admits she lit match at lonely Beverly Glen fraction of a second before the shot was fired. Police believe match may have been death signal.

Burch—Came to Los Angeles two weeks before murder and left morning following it. Identified as man who rented auto, drove it forty miles, according to speedometer (exact distance to Beverly Glen and return via Santa Monica). Wooden stock of murder shot gun found in sea at Santa Monica. Partially identified as man who bought shotgun shells from Eliza Howell, saleswoman of sporting goods house. Discovered by Dr. J. J. Finley to have a thorn in his knee, corresponding exactly to bramble thorns about Beverly Glen. Known to have kept vigil on Kennedy's officers previous to the killing from his hotel directly across Broadway.

U.S. Making Three Treaties Of Peace

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C.—The United States government is negotiating separate peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary.

Following word that the German treaty is nearly ready for signature, it was learned authoritatively at the state department Saturday that work on the treaties with Austria and Hungary had been started.

The Austrian and Hungarian treaties, it was learned, differ from that with Germany.

The German treaty will be passed on certain provisions of the treaty of Versailles, while the parts with Austria and Hungary will be drawn more like agreements of amity and commerce.

Rapid progress is being made towards concluding the negotiations now going on between Ellis Loring Dresel, American commissioner at Berlin and the German government but it is unlikely that any treaty agreed on will be submitted to the senate before the December session of congress.

WANTS RAIL ACTION
BEFORE VACATION

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—President Harding in a conference with Republican House Leader Mondell urged that the administration railroad bill be pushed through the house before the proposed congressional recess despite strong opposition to it in the senate.

Indications are that the president, believing that the measure is vital to relieving business conditions, may bring pressure to bear for the enactment of the measure.

CANADIAN WHISKY
FLOWS OVER BORDER

By United Press Leased Wire
Detroit, Mich.—Canadian rum runners Saturday apparently succeeded in eluding the prohibition enforcement agents after working throughout the night to bring hundreds of gallons of liquor across the border.

Free from the interference of Canadian officials, the rum runners plied back and forth across the river in launches and other craft and prohibition agents were without sufficient forces to deal with the invasion.

The Canadian liquor was freed by a decision of Canadian courts that custom agents of the dominion had no right to interfere with shipments of liquor into the United States.

State and federal authorities together said they had collected an army of 75 agents to meet the rum invasion. Those who watched the operation of the rum runners declared the army of 75 had dwindled to two agents who were on a tour of inspection and that they caught none of the runners.

APPLY COAT OF TAR TO MAN WHO ABUSED HIS WIFE

By United Press Leased Wire
La Porte, Ind.—Eighteen men who came in autos from Glendora, Mich., just over the Indiana boundary, brought Albert Krieger, laborer, to the woods three miles north of New Carlisle, half way between here and South Bend last night, stripped him and applied tar and feathers.

Identity of the members of the mob were not obtained.

Krieger was warned to treat his wife decently in future. The mob accused Krieger of having attempted to pour carbolic acid on his wife recently. On Thursday he was released under $100 bond on a charge of beating her.

WOOD ADVISES AGAINST FILIPINO INDEPENDENCE

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—General Leonard Wood, who has been investigating conditions in the Philippines, is understood to have advised against independence for the islands in the immediate future.

Secretary Weeks said Saturday he desired to have General Wood in the position of governor-general of the Philippines during the next year, and that there was no possibility independence would be granted within that time.

Put All Gold In One Bank
To Put Stop To All Wars

New York.—Merging of the world's entire gold supply into a single reserve was urged by Alfred Owen Crozier Saturday as the one solution of the international financial situation.

Crozier, a recognized authority on monetary matters and international law, declared in an interview that he believed the Washington disarmament conference would develop into a new and permanent association of nations and that concentration of the world's gold would be a natural corollary.

Such a super reserve, according to Crozier, would have these results: Stabilization of international finance and commerce.

Prevention sudden and disastrous inflations or deflations of domestic currency.

Self financing through interest profits of the world bank and the association of nations.

Effectively prevent future wars by rendering impossible their financing.

"The entire world's supply of gold amounts to only $8,000,000,000, about half of which is now in the United States," said Crozier.

"Yet the aggregate debt of the two score principal nations is more than $200,000,000,000 and this combined with the billions of dollars of international commerce provides a world financial structure of possibly $500,000,000,000—all resting on the meagre $8,000,000,000 actual gold supply."

LAUNDRYMEN PLAN SYSTEM TO INSURE PATRONS' PROPERTY

Novel Insurance Scheme Is Discussed at Meeting of Valley Men Here.

Appleton laundrymen may introduce a system whereby patrons may insure their laundry against fire and theft as the result of a discussion of the subject at the Wisconsin Laundrymen's association meeting at the Sherman house Friday.

Laundry owners here are giving the matter favorable consideration, said W. F. Lazar, and it is likely that laundrymen in the entire Fox river valley will introduce the system before long. At present very few people have any insurance on their laundry while it is out of their possession and the policy of the laundry owners does not cover losses of any goods in his establishment.

By the proposed system a patron may be fully protected against the loss of his laundry by paying an insurance fee of one cent for each bundle. If the bundle is lost by fire or theft he will receive compensation after he makes a true statement of the value of the articles it contained.

In securing a policy on their homes and household goods, some people have a provision written into it which covers all their clothing and all other equipment which is likely to be sent from the house for cleaning or renovating. Their premium is expanded to cover the extras and of course they have full protection against laundry or other losses. The laundrymen's insurance is designed to benefit people who do not have this protection but who need it.

The new insurance system will be introduced after the association has approved a policy that will be satisfactory to the laundrymen and their patrons.

AUTOISTS OBEYING NEW PARKING RULES

Cooperation of Drivers Is Asked to Relieve Congestion in Streets.

After two busy days tagging cars George T. Prim, chief of police, finds that automobile drivers educated themselves quickly in the new parking rules which require cars to stand parallel with the curb except on College-ave. Very few cars were found standing at the illegal angle Friday.

"Drivers took the warnings in good spirit," said Chief Prim, "and seem to appreciate our method of handling the violations instead of making an arrest and levying a fine. We expect no further trouble."

Hotel bell boys and employees have been informed of the regulations so they can caution tourists and salesmen not to violate rules with which they are unfamiliar.

Confusion and danger have been reduced materially at crowded street intersections, because two or even three machines now have ample room to pass each other. The narrow lanes left for moving cars when lines of cars protruded well toward the center of the road were an annoyance to drivers.

There would be still less congestion, Chief Prim believes, if more autoists would use the public parking places at Oneida and Washington-st. the old Commercial hotel yard and on Morris-st. between College-ave. and Washington-st. There is ample space for 200 cars and the locations are so convenient that cooperation of more drivers ought to be given to keep the streets free for moving traffic, the chief says.

DAIRYMEN MEET TO DEVISE PLAN TO CONTROL PRICE

Meeting at Black Creek Monday

Organization of farmers of Outagamie-co. into a branch of the Equity Dairy Cooperative association in order to obtain higher prices for milk will be the object of a mass meeting to be held at Black Creek Monday evening. A speaker from the National Milk Producers' federation will be present.

With milk as Wisconsin's biggest agricultural product, the move for a cooperative system of handling milk and preventing market control by outside agencies is said to be gaining rapid headway in Wisconsin. The plans used in other counties will be explained at the Black Creek gathering. It is stated in the call for the meeting that Wisconsin farmers cannot produce milk profitably below an average of $1.35 a hundred pounds. The average price for this year is placed at $1.47, meaning a loss of 48 cents on 100 pounds. More than $40,000,000 is said to be lost to dairymen in this way, causing a demand for some agency that will keep prices at a profit-making level.

Similar meetings are being held all over the state. One was in session in Green Bay Wednesday and another is scheduled for Fond du Lac Friday, Aug. 19.

NO MARKET FOR LEMONS,
LUTHER LINDAUER SAYS

"Lemons were a drug on the market and large quantities rotted on the trees," said Luther Lindauer of Los Angeles, Calif., formerly of Kaukauna, who called on friends here Thursday.

Mr. Lindauer is the owner of a lemon orchard and said he was compelled to throw away a large number of cases after paying 40 cents per case for picking, there being no demand for them. He offered a portion of his crop for the picking, but no one appeared to want them.

At one time during the summer lemons retailed at 60 cents a dozen in Appleton and a few days before Independence day could not be had at any price. The price has since dropped materially.

Mr. Lindauer said the conditions of the California market was due to a bountiful crop and to prohibitive freight rates.

No Airplane For Her

Petite Lily Letzel, world-famous aerial gymnast, will make no airplane flights this season. Her contract with the Ringling Brothers specifically states that she is to go no higher on the ground than the dome of the circus main-tent.

To most girls the experience of flying about at the end of a rope fixed in the very top of a circus tent, where the slightest miscalculation might result in serious injury, would furnish thrills enough to last them for an ordinary lifetime. Not so with the darling Lillian. She regards her occupation as a rather tame one. Last summer she varied the "monotony" by making a dozen flights in half as many different style planes. On more than one occasion she all but drove the circus managers to despair with her madcap undertakings. So when this season's contract was drawn, a special "no flight" clause was inserted.

Lily Letzel has the reputation of being the most widely known and best remembered of all circus stars and the Ringlings do not propose having her risk her neck in the clouds.

"I suppose that if I did all my flying over a net it would be quite all right," pouts the dainty aerialist, "but just wait until the circus tour ends; then I'll show them."

This season's mammoth double circus offers more stars than ever before, and these have been "varied" by the introduction of Europe's most sensational wild animal acts displayed in a trio of steel arenas. All will be seen here Wednesday, Aug. 17th.

Fur And Embroidery Used To Trim New Fall Suits

The rainbow organdie effect of the summer wardrobe of "Mildred of fashion" is to give place to the more somber colors appropriate to autumn. Fashion hath decreed. Black which has been conspicuous by its absence except in the sport suit or sweater, will be the smartest color for the fall suits according to Miss Fisher from Kaufman's Model Garment shop. "The usual shades of brown, taupe and navy will be very good."

"The latest suits are heavily embroidered and fur trimmed. One of our most striking models is made with a full flare in the jacket which is heavily embroidered in a contrasting color. Many suits are made with the long straight line effect; others come in the semi-fitted style."

"Skirts are to be from seven to nine inches from the floor." This means about two or three inches longer than the average length of the summer skirt.

In materials, the Moussine seems to be the most favored with Beldines, dretyns, yalama, velours and terry very good. Furs are used for collars and bands around the bottom of the coats. Beaver, squirrel, kolinski and baby lamb are in the lead.

"Coats of suits are to be about 36 inches long," said Miss Grundy of the Gloudean-Gage Co. "They are fur trimmed in Nutra, beaverette, Hudson seal, baby lamb and caracul, and heavily embroidered. Suits for this climate are interlined and have convertible collars. The various shades of brown and tan are to be very good. Tricotine, velour and peach bloom will be good while chiffon broadcloth will be used some. Yalama is favored in popular priced merchandise."

Suits are being shown at the Geenen's Dry Goods Co., in the bolivia, velours and Polyanna materials in shades of brown and tan and navy blue. Some of the new models are made in the semi-fitted mode while others are made with the smart flared coat. Mrs. Mary Finegan of the suit department, said that embroideries were very good and that most of the suits are trimmed with opossum, squirrel or mole. Materials are the soft, heavy, velvety kind rather than the smooth weaves used in the spring suits.

NEED HEAVY RAINS TO SAVE SUGAR BEET CROP

Unless generous rain comes soon, the sugar beet crop in Outagamie-co. and in this section of the state will be seriously curtailed, according to a statement by W. B. Rosevear, general manager of the Green Bay Sugar company, who has made a survey of fields in this vicinity.

According to a report from the United States department of agriculture early in the week, the sugar beet crop for the country as a whole will be 89.9 per cent of normal. A yield of 8,000,000 tons is predicted by the department, based on calculations made on conditions at Aug. 1.

"Pa And Ma" Day Will Be Feature Of Scout Camp

Appleton Public Will Be Urged to Turn Out on Visitation
Day, Aug. 21.

"Pa and ma" day at the coming boy scout camp at Onaway island is to be Sunday, August 21, when parents, members of Appleton Boy Scout council and friends of the scouts are expected to pay the campers a visit. It is to be one of the happiest days for the attendance comes up to expectations of the camp committee.

Visitation day will hold a real allurements especially to automobile owners, because its program will eclipse any weekend outing that might be taken elsewhere. The visitors are expected to leave Appleton in the morning and spend the entire day with the scouts. Meals are to be served at a nominal charge for those who do not want to carry lunches, providing the names are handed in at local headquarters so plates may be reserved.

The camp's real success will depend on the response to the invitation which will be sent broadcast to parents, council members and others, according to H. P. Buck, scout executive. The boys will be all anticipation on that Sunday, will have the camp clean and neat, and will try to make the best showing possible when the parents arrive.

"We ought to have at least 50 visitors," said Mr. Buck, "and our day would be a glorious success with 100 or more. It would be a big disappointment to the boys if a large number of Appleton people did not come to the island that Sunday."

Swimming hours will be arranged for all who come. There will be baseball games, contests between scouts and their dads, water exhibits, diving contests, court of honor tests, drills of several kinds and many other features for the entertainment of the visitors. Plenty of time will be allowed for parents to visit with their boys, and those who have no sons will be allowed to adopt one for the day.

The visit to the camp will make a nice day's outing for the autoist. The distance from Appleton by automobile is 40 miles, and concrete roads are available much of the way if the New London-Northport-Royalton route is followed to Waupaca. The camp is at Onaway island, Chain-o-Lakes, about three miles from Waupaca, in Rainbow lake.

REDUCED FARE TICKETS TO WOMAN'S CONVENTION

Reductions will apply only from points in Wisconsin. Tickets must be purchased between Oct. 8 and 14 inclusive, and Oct. 18 has been set as the return limit. Mrs. M. C. Rottier, 114 Michigan-st., Milwaukee, is the railroad secretary for the convention.

$35,100 WANTED FOR NEW HOMES FROM LOAN BODY

Loans amounting to $16,100 for new homes were approved by directors of Appleton Building and Loan association at the monthly meeting, Thursday evening in the Citizens National bank. Nine new applications were submitted, totaling $19,000.

Growth of the association during the month was quite pleasing to the directors as shown by the report of George H. Beckley, secretary. Plans are in prospect for enlarging the association still more. A promotion and advertising campaign will be put into effect late in the fall.

CANNING FACTORY HAD STORMY HISTORY HERE

The work of dismantling the former canning factory which for several years has formed part of the property of the Appleton Coated Paper Co. is proceeding rapidly. The roof and north side and a portion of the frame work having been removed. The lumber is a good quality and will be used in the construction of other buildings. The building dates back a quarter of a century ago and while the site was donated by the city, the plant which was operated three seasons, was never a money maker for its owners, the Goode Canning Co. The proprietors found difficulty in getting farmers to raise peas and on top of this they struck three poor seasons which caused them to pull up stakes and move to Baltimore, Md., where they are still located.

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE ON ARMISTICE DAY

Inasmuch as the principal Oriental and Occidental powers have accepted gladly invitations to participate in the conference on the limitation of armament and other most important subjects, arrangements are being made to hold the initial session on Nov. 11, Armistice day. In the interim of three months the several governments will have ample time in which to rummage through the pile of existing and anticipated present and future problems, and sort them out, examine and compare them, and lay out their controversial campaign as military strategists do a series of battles.

There will be the usual formalities to the conference, and the usual parliamentary conventions will be observed with the usual decorum. Behind the dignified advances and maneuvers will be the usual measures and contrivances of international diplomacy, with many of the officials alert to seize an advantage. And it is this habit of consummate diplomatists to strive for selfish gain, regardless of the seriousness of the consequences to other nations, which is most to be feared in the forthcoming congress. Should it be tolerated, the extraordinary work for lasting peace would be neutralized. But, if it is discountenanced and sincerity and candor are substituted for it, the conference will result in understandings of large benefit to all the world.

The elements are favorable to fair and amicable discussion, so favorable, in fact, that the usual mercenary wiles of diplomacy can be condemned as unethical and dishonorable. The governments are bent in shoulders and knees from trying to carry weighty war-debts, they are trudging through the mire of bankruptcy, and public opinion demands relief from onerous taxation and security against the plotting and aggrandizement which generally cause strife. Public opinion and judicious publicity can inspire the congress with the just spirit which will produce agreements of great import. The management of the blazing light of universal popular will is the genius which will determine the measure of real success.

INVENTION OF ICE CREAM SODA

Mr. Fred Sanders, Jr., of Detroit, claims for his grandfather, Fred Sanders, the distinction, if it is a distinction, of inventing the ice cream soda. Without doubt the ice cream soda is one of the softest of drinks, and it is as different from prescribed firewater as the front view of an electric fan is from the sunny side of the street in August. It may be contended, too, therefore, that Mr. Sanders, Sr., inaugurated the prohibition movement in 1880.

Forty years ago it was customary to mix fresh, sweet cream with soda water. The elder Sanders had a supply of sweet cream which was curdled by a thunderstorm. A wedding party entered his emporium, and he experimented with the soda water and the cream until he produced for his guests a drink like the modern ice cream soda.

The world in general is quite willing to let Mr. Sanders, Sr., have the honor of inventing the ice cream soda. There have been much worse drinks, and there are still much worse concoctions. Ice cream has a sweet simplicity, and is frank, cool and soothing, and for persons who like to know what they are imbibing it is preferable to a few of the chemical mysteries of this soft-drink era.

FORD REIMBURSES HIMSELF WITH WASTE

Acquisition of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad by Henry Ford solved the carrier's chief problem, that of procuring traffic, as the line hauls all of the Ford freight which is destined to any station on its tracks or to any connecting system. However, Mr. Ford really seems to be getting results which other railroad owners or managers have been unable to produce.

Trainmen connected with the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton confirm Mr. Ford's assertion that enough scrap and waste material has been picked up along the right-of-way and in yards, buildings and stations to reimburse Mr. Ford for his total capital investment. The locomotive which hauls the passenger train from Detroit to Bainbridge, approximately the same distance as that between St. Louis and Chicago, is a composite of three scrap heap engines, and it glitters with nickel-plated and polished brass embellishments.

Under the Ford management 1200 cars have been handled in twelve hours, as compared with 200 in twenty-four hours under the former management. Mr. Ford claims that he has speeded up freight movement to such an extent that he has reduced the time when raw material is shipped by the manufacturer and the finished product is received by the consignee from twenty-two to fourteen days, a saving of eight days.

New ideas in railroad transportation and operation methods will put the officials of other roads, large and small, on their mettle. The Ford lessons in capitalizing waste and in systematizing the yard and terminal service, are of themselves decidedly worth while.

Mr. Ford achieves many dazzling results which should not be amazing, as they fit in with other plans or work, yet a few of his innovations are worthy of study by experts and may enhance the efficiency of the railroad service in general. His spectacular exploitation sometimes appears to be rather offensive, especially to skilled executives, who are humiliated by it; nevertheless, his efforts and experiments deserve to be watched closely, so that those which may turn out to be successful and useful may be adopted at once.

BOBBED HAIR, ROUGE DAUBS, INVISIBLE EARS

The arbiters of feminine fashion have decreed that women shall be several inches taller next autumn than they are at present, haughty in poise, walk and appearance, and just as vain, clever and captivating as ever. Women will, in fact, be more clever-looking than they have been for some time, as their ears will be visible again; more captivating, as they will wear their hair long and high; more stately, for they will wear long skirts; and vain—impossible, as their vanity has always been, is and probably ever will be as superlative as their beauty and charm.

Hair will be long and it will be dressed high and decorated with fan shaped feathers, which will exaggerate tallness, as will also the long skirts. Return of the hair to the top of the head, where it used to be long, will restore visibility of the ears. It will be stylish to have hair the color or shade of the dress worn; which implies that many women will have several sets of hair. However, bobbed hair will be passe, and this is a favor which will reconcile admirers of feminine beauty to wigs of many hues. Harmony indicates a bearing which will conform to the high, feather-tipped hair, and the designing arbiters have decided that women shall walk with a peacock strut.

Bobbed hair no doubt is comfortable, and to many women it is becoming, but it is neither so artistic or admirable as long and wavy or curly locks. The crowing beauty of women is the hair—long, thick, silken strands which also halo in a sheen of blending color the beaming beauty of soft complexion and sparkling eyes; the crown of womanly dignity and culture.

That the arbiters of fashion have not restricted the lavish use of powder and paint is deplorable. The excessive and inept embellishment of the features with smears and daubs of paint and powder has made women, especially young women, look careless and hideous. There should be an edict of public opinion and refinement against the disfigurement of naturally beautiful features with artificial pigment. Fashion cannot excuse the abuse of the complexion with pastry patches, blotches and streaks of powder and paint.

SCHOOL FOR BRIDES

If a future helpmate suggests that there is room for improvement in his bride-to-be, the situation is not always strained. "A delegation of young Chinese men visited us recently with a request that we begin classes for their wives and fiancées," writes Mr. V. W. C. A. secretary from Nanking. "They even offered to pay tuition and had a list of subjects already made out. The young women brought by them are enthusiastic in their attendance and invariably arrive hours ahead of time. At a tea given to talk things over, one energetic bride demonstrated that she was not there to waste time on tea but to learn to read and write like her husband."

Health Talks
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.
Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

Neuritis.

One of the requests appearing most frequently in my daily mail is: "Please suggest something good for neuritis." Long ago women whose husbands beat them and dragged them around the waist on Saturday night developed nervous prostration. Then some genius conceived the idea of making the ailment more fashionable, which he did by re-christening it neurasthenia. For years it was all the rage, this neurasthenia. Sounded so exclusive—something only the idle rich could afford. Thus old n. p. became popular. And now this fancy of exclusiveness—and such fancies do prevail regarding diseases—has fastened itself upon neuritis, and victims of all kinds of aches and pains of an indefinite character are delighted and flattered when some healer or near-healer calls the trouble neuritis.

Please do not misunderstand me, victims of neuritis. I am not trying to place you in the category with victims of rheumatism and victims of catarrh. Let those deluded folk enjoy their rheumatism and their catarrh. Your neuritis is neuritis—nerve inflammation—in about one-fourth of the cases so designated. Far be it from me to imply that there is nothing the matter with a neuritis subject or with the neuritis itself. I merely emphasize the fact that, whereas the diagnosis of "rheumatism" is a bad guess in 97.8 per cent of the cases, and that of "catarrh" is a bad guess in 100 per cent of the cases, the diagnosis of neuritis is a mistake in only about 75 per cent of the cases. And in at least 80 per cent of the 75 per cent of mistaken diagnosis of neuritis, it is not the physician, but some one else, who has suggested neuritis.

There is nothing I can say to correspondents who ask me to suggest something good for neuritis, I am quite as much at a loss to do that as I would be to suggest something good for a run down condition, an indefinite ache or pain, or a tired business man. The mere word neuritis conveys no tangible idea of the nature of the trouble. Too many easy going folk have learned to call every ache or pain, which formerly passed as neuralgia (nerve ache), by the more classy, up-to-date and impressive name of neuritis—keeping always in the back of the mind a hazy notion that it is somehow related with rheumatism—which it is, both terms being meaningless as popularly understood. A feature of neuritis (nerve inflammation) which is practically essential to a correct diagnosis is atrophy or wasting of the muscle or muscle group supplied by the nerve or nerve trunk involved in the inflammation. Without such wasting and weakening there is little on which to hinge the diagnosis of neuritis. Another feature is the long duration of the trouble—always many weeks or months.

Common causative factors of inflammation of one or more nerves are alcohol, arsenic, lead, injury, infection through wounds or from adjacent lesions (such as the facial neuritis sometimes appearing as a complication of middle ear disease).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Glasses Do Not Weaken Eyes.

Please state in your column whether glasses weaken the eyes. My left eye is 20-20, while my right eye is 8-20. Do I need glasses? (L. R. L.)
Answer—You need only a monocle, or glasses with the correction over the defective eye and plain lens or none over the sound eye. Wearing glasses, when there is a defect of vision, never weakens the eye-sight, but often preserves it. That is, provided the glasses are accurately fitted and properly supported before the eyes. Many are not.

Shiny Nose.

Please, oh, please, print something for my shiny, greasy nose. (Miss F. D. W.)
Answer—Zinc sulphate 1 dram
Potassium sulphate 1 dram
Rose water 4 ounces
Shake well and dab on nose and allow to dry on over night.

Hot Water and Salt Water.

Please give one recipe of the practice of drinking hot water before breakfast, and using salt water to bathe the eyes when they feel sore or inflamed. (L. L. T.)
Answer—Many persons find that a cupful or two of hot water taken half an hour before breakfast has a laxative effect and aids digestion. It can do no harm, in any case, provided it be taken not less than fifteen minutes before eating. Hot water at meal time tends to decrease the secretion of the gastric juice and slow down or delay digestion; cold water at meal time stimulates secretion and tends to improve digestion. Plain water irritates the eyes; but the addition of a rounded teaspoonful to the pint of boiled water cooled to body warmth renders the water about the saline strength of the tears and that makes it non-irritating for bathing the eyes. Stronger salt water should not be used. This "physiological" or "normal" salt solution is all right for such purpose, though it is not advisable to bathe the eyes as a constant practice.

Women And Disarmament
By Frederic J. Haskin
Washington.—A plea for some armament conference will be appointed. After that, pressure will be brought to bear upon the administration, so that at least one woman may be on the commission to discuss disarmament.
Pitiless Publicity Urged
Delegates to represent the people in one of three aims for which the Women's Committee for world disarmament is working. The other two are that there shall be full publicity regarding proceedings, and that side issues shall not be allowed to distract the conference from its purpose—to make some decision regarding reduction of armaments.
The sentiment in favor of open diplomacy is growing. People are beginning to demand that officials remember that they are representatives of the public and to insist that the day of trusting blindly to officialdom do the right thing is about over.
"The disarmament conference should be a public meeting," declared Miss Wold. "The people should know what steps are taken as the meetings proceed, so that criticism favorable and unfavorable can be voiced by the people before final steps are taken. Then, too, if there is a failure to get results at the conference the people would know who is responsible."
The other point is that disarmament should be the supreme question, and not forgotten in discussions on what to do with the Philippines, where the United States has put the surplus population of Japan, and is the Monroe Doctrine too antiquated for use, and other international subjects any one of which might be debated for days without noticeable progress toward an understanding. The women's disarmament committee fears that if preliminary conferences and side questions are introduced at the meetings, reduction of armaments may be put off from day to day, and possibly in the end postponed "to some more suitable date."
To bring these three points to the attention of women throughout the country, and then to have them point out their wishes to their government representatives, is keeping the disarmament committee busy.
When the committee started, no other organization could be found that would back so unpromising a cause as disarmament. Congress was considering bigger army and navy plans and sentiment seemed to be for protective armaments regardless of the tax burden. Even churches felt disarmament hopeless at the time.
But the committee kept on writing letters and making appeals, and in two months the tide turned. No one will ever know how much the women did to turn public opinion and official interest towards disarmament. Once it began to be regarded as a possibility, organizations everywhere have lent their support. Women's organizations in thirty seven states are working for the three points.
The women's disarmament committee is not confining its activities to this country, but is writing to women's organizations in England, France, Japan, and Italy, regarding the three points of paramount interest to them as well as to women of America. There has not been time for answers to these letters to come to America.
It is known already that women in these countries are awake to the importance of the conference. To take one country, Japan, for instance, there is a group of women similar to the women's disarmament committee in this country, called the "Ladies Association for Peace." That they have public sentiment with them is indicated by the report of Ozaki, the former minister of justice, that of 100,000 people to whom he had spoken regarding disarmament, ninety-four per cent were in favor of it.

Haskin

There must be some men experienced in diplomatic procedure at the disarmament conference, of course. But it is being urged that delegates be also appointed to represent the people who are most vitally concerned in disarmament—business, labor, the farmers, and the women of the country.
To impress upon the administration the desirability of appointing these delegates for the people, women all over the country are writing to their representatives and senators, to Secretary of State Hughes, and to the president. These officials, they say, being partly dependent on women's votes for their positions, owe careful consideration to their requests.
Especially are the women interested in a woman delegate. President Harding has already been approached regarding this by news correspondents who asked the other day if there would be room at the conference for a woman. Mr. Harding answered that there would undoubtedly be room, but that as yet he had not had an opportunity to consider the matter. Regarding this as a hopeful sign, the women's disarmament committee expects to arrange a delegation to put the proposition before the president in the near future.

Jane Addams Suggested

When Miss Emma Wold, chairman of the committee, was asked what woman it favored as a suitable delegate, she answered that there are so many women who are competent to discuss armaments and peace problems that no particular candidate would be suggested. Miss Wold mentioned, however, as a few possibilities, Jane Addams, who has sat at international conferences before and is known as a strong advocate of peace measures; Julia Lathrop, head of the Children's Bureau; Rose Schneiderman, who ran for congress last November; Ida Clyde Clarke, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

The National Woman's Party, which is backing the woman delegate idea, is not supporting any one candidate either. According to Miss Alice Paul, the woman's party cannot take sides on the question of disarmament because it has one big problem before it—to put women on an equal status with men in government, and before the law.

"From this standpoint alone," said Miss Paul, "the party is interested in the disarmament conference, though undoubtedly many members of the party, as individuals, hold strong views on the subject of disarmament." "The woman's party holds that women should be equally considered in making decisions, and a meeting will be held on August 12, at our watch tower in Washington, at which a committee on the disarmament conference will be organized."

THE QUESTION BOX

- Q. Does electric current flow through the wire, or on the outside exclusively? L. T. M.
A. The Bureau of Standards says that in the case of direct current, as supplied from dry or storage batteries or a direct current dynamo as used in farm-lighting plants, and by some central stations, the current flows uniformly throughout the entire cross section of the wire. With alternating currents there is a so-called "skin effect" which causes the current to be crowded somewhat toward the surface of the wire. In the case of radio current at very high frequency (of the order of a million cycles per second) and large wires, the current is practically all close to the surface of the wire.

A. The Pension Bureau says that on June 30, 1921 there were 231,225 Civil War widows and minors on the pension rolls. Not all Civil War widows receive pension because there are many things which may prevent, particularly the fact that the marriage of the widower did not take place prior to June 27, 1905.
- Q. How is fig leather made? F. A. R.
A. Very ripe figs are used for fig leather. Wash and wash and dry fine pulp, spread on platters and dry in the sun or in the oven. When dry, dust with powdered sugar and roll up like jelly cake. Cut in suitable pieces and pack away in jars.
- Q. What becomes of "dead letters"? P. O. S.

In the case of valuable articles are kept for a year and if not identified sold, the receipts going to the Post Office Department.

MAY NAME WOMAN FOR CABINET JOB
Warren, O.—Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, mentioned as the woman member of the American delegation to the disarmament conference, also has been mentioned repeatedly as a cabinet possibility.
Despite Mrs. Upton's frequent assertions that "she wouldn't take the job if it was offered to her on a silver platter," unofficial Washington says she is slated for the proposed post of secretary of welfare a new cabinet department that President Harding is known to favor.
Mrs. Upton is best known over the country for her work in the suffrage movement, which she began in 1890. For 15 years she was treasurer of the National Woman Suffrage Association and long has been head of the movement in Ohio.
Here in her home town she has been president of the school board and an official in the Political Equality League. She also is noted as an authoress, having written several books of historical nature, among them being, "Our Early Presidents, Their Wives and Children," and "The History of the Western Reserve."

WHEELS OF WORLD PEACE MEETING BEGIN TURNING
Washington.—The wheels of the Washington disarmament and Pacific conference were actually turning Friday.
The convale will get under way November 11, Armistice day.
The call for the parley is the first definite pronouncement by any government officially setting forth the hopes of the world for relief from the burdens and dangers of maintaining crushing armaments.
Secretary Hughes despatched the invitations in identical notes to Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy. The invitation to China differed in that it did not contain the arguments for limitation of armaments.

Confessions of a Bride

A Clash to a Rescue
We regarded the shared of Chrissy's veil with amusement.
"The girl never climbed that ladder of her own free will," said Daddy Lorimer.
I started up the vertical ladder. Bob pulled me back.
"Jane, dear," he remonstrated, "stay here with Dad and Kathi. Come on, Spence."
But Spence had mounted a dozen rungs while Bob was talking to me. I waited until Bob had followed him to the level of the floor above, then I turned to Katherine with:
"Don't leave Daddy! I'm going up!"
Daddy Lorimer had been lame for months. But he protested:
"I can make it!"
He supposed that there was but the height of the basement to ascend, but I explained that the shaft had no opening except into the floor of a closet in the second story of Certeis' house. Daddy gave up the idea with a groan of impatience.
"Why are you going?" demanded Katherine.
"Because I know the plan of the rooms up there!" I called down to her. Then to Spence who was nearing the top: "You'll bump your head if you go too fast!"
"I did!"
"Push upward, hard! It's a trap door. Step out—you'll find yourself in a closet—very dark—a bulb hangs from the ceiling; pull the chain!"
By the time I had finished speaking, a square of light gleamed above my head. I made the rest of the strenuous climb in silence. Bob reached down a helping hand and pulled me out of the shaft.
We three stood in the closet where months before I had hidden through a long, hot night, in the uncomfortable folds of a diving suit.
Bob turned the knob of the closet door. I placed a warning finger on his arm.
"Go slow! Don't walk into a trap!"
Cautionally, slowly, he pushed the door open.
We had been wandering in the cellars for more than an hour, and it was already dusk when we had filed through the panel in the alley wall. Blackness engulfed the corners of the great room we were about to enter, but rays from the small closet light showed me that the wonderful Chinese rugs were still stretched on the floor.
On the table by the bed was the oval silver frame which once had enclosed the photograph I had given Certeis before Bob and I were engaged. The frame was empty. Womanlike, even in that time of suspense, couldn't help wondering whether or not Certeis had destroyed my picture.
We crept like burglars across the splendid chamber and into the great hall. The closeness of the place was stifling. We dared not turn on the lights. Spence produced the flash he had brought with him. We explored several of the luxurious rooms and were surprised because neither guard, caretaker nor housekeeper stopped us.
The place was as still as a burial vault. At last we entered the exquisite suite which once had been my down.
The first circle of the flash in Spence's hand revealed Chrystobel Lorimer, bound hand and foot, and stretched upon the bed. And she was gagged! Her great eyes stared at us. My heart stopped beating.

Adventures of the Twins

Chick's Song
This was the song that Chick Chick-aree sang while he was waiting for the maple sirup to flow into the hole he had made with his little sharp teeth in the wall of his house in the maple tree:
"Oh, the brooks are full and the clover's green,
And the bluebird builds her nest,
And the willow trees with their silver sheen,
Are trying to look their best.
The robin wakes with his springtime song.
The woods from their winter nap,
(Oh, I hope to goodness that I won't wait long,
For my sweet, good maple tree sap!)"
The trailing arbutus' shelling bells
Will soon in the grove be seen,
And the bowery, flowery, hidden dells
Are spreading their sprays of green,
May the violets blue their stay prolong,
And the dogwood, too, mayhap,
(But I'll die of thirst if I wait here long,
For my sweet, good maple tree sap!)"
Mr. Frog comes out and the turtles, too,
And the wasps from the barn eaves creep,
The owl from the woods calls "Who, who, who?"
Mr. Woodchuck wakes from his sleep,
(But me, oh my, it does seem long,
To wait for my maple tree sap!)"
Every time he sang a verse, Chick peeped into the hole, but there was nothing there.

Tomato Canning Time

Canning tomatoes should not be over-ripe. Too much emphasis cannot be put in this. An over-ripe tomato contains an acid that no amount of cooking can neutralize and the vegetables will not keep after canning. Solid fruit should be procured and any undesirable spots carefully cut away.
Four scalding water over tomatoes and the skins will slip off easily.
Tomatoes may be canned by the cold pack method of the open kettle. If a housekeeper has her own garden and cans only a few jars at a time the open kettle method is preferable, but when a bushel of tomatoes are to be canned at one time the cold pack method saves time.
Canned Tomatoes (Cold Pack)
Wash tomatoes. Pour over boiling water and let stand 1 1/2 minutes or until the skins will slip easily. Cut large tomatoes in quarters and pack in sterilized jars, add 1 teaspoonful of salt to each quart of tomatoes, adjust rubber and half seal top. Put in boiling water to cover the jars by at least two inches and process twenty-five minutes. Count the time after boiling begins. Do not add water to the tomatoes in the cans, for the juice of the tomatoes themselves covers the pieces. "Salad" tomatoes may be canned whole and served as salad when opened. Do not forget to cold dip the fruit before slipping off the skins.
Open Kettle Method
Wash tomatoes. Pour over scalding water and slip off skins. Cut in pieces and put in preserving kettle. Add salt in the proportion of 1 teaspoonful to a quart of tomatoes. Bring to the boiling point and boil 15 minutes. Pour into sterilized cans and seal while boiling hot. The cans must be full to overflowing and the tomatoes must be boiling hot.
Tomatoes Canned for Soup
Wash tomatoes and cut in pieces. Put in preserving kettle and bring to boiling point. Boil 10 minutes. Rub through a sieve. Put juice or "puree" in preserving kettle, bring to boiling point, boil five minutes and pour into sterilized jars. Seal while boiling hot. Tomato puree may be used for gelatin salads as well as soups.

AUTOMOBILES CUTTING INTO RAILROAD TRAVEL

Railroad travel has been light during the months of July and August owing to the increased amount of automobile travel. The coaches of the principal trains passing through Appleton which at one time were crowded with passengers are only partially filled and numerous trains of the various railroads of the state have been discontinued temporarily for lack of patronage. Traveling men claim they are handicapped in covering their territories by this step of the railway companies and more of them are continually making use of automobiles.

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Be the Best Medicine for Girls and Women

Hamilton, Ohio.—"I had such awful pains in my back I could hardly stand on my feet and I was never without a headache. If I walked up town I thought I would drop and many a time I felt so bad I had to go to bed and I was not able to do much of my housework. I would have hemorrhages every two weeks and dragging-down pains. I had been feeling badly for three years and had two of the best doctors in the city, but I kept getting worse and only weighed 126 pounds. I saw your advertisement and I took eight boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets, four bottles Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and your Liver Pills and noticed an improvement right away. Now I weigh 188 pounds and feel fine. Everybody tells me how well I look and asks me what I took and I always say, 'Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the best medicine in the world for any sickness to which girls and women are subject.' I will always have a good word for your medicine."

WRONG MAYOR SIGNS BONDS; ISSUE IS VOID

Two Rivers, Wis.—Because the wrong mayor signed the bonds the city of Two Rivers has been obliged to reprint an entire issue amounting to $30,000.

Last fall the city council voted to float a $30,000 school bond issue and the bonds were printed soon after ward, and were duly signed by Dr. W. J. Curran, then the city executive. The bonds were not offered for sale until a few days ago, and now H. C. Gowran is mayor.

It is an established rule that municipal bonds must be signed by the mayor and city clerk in office at the time when they are offered for sale.

TWO BALL PLAYERS JUMP TO GREEN BAY

Kaukauna Manager Is Disturbed With Action of Players.

Kaukauna—Manager Jake Miller said just the other day when the season is just about over you get a team signed up that is just run to go for and win games and you get more confidence than at any other time—on boy, ain't it a grand and glorious feeling?

Today Manager Miller has changed his jovious tone to one of lament and he is pleading with the players to have to get together and cooperate if we want a successful attempt at semi professional baseball," said W. H. Johnson, treasurer of the team Friday. "Under present conditions the players and not the managers are running the leagues. Just because a man is offered a few dollars more in some other team he has the privilege of jumping and leaving someone in the lurch."

"The Lake Shore has been yelling about our league taking players but they started it when they took Feilhausen and Dobry. It seems to me they are real offenders. Green Bay especially has been taking her share of our players. "Smoke" Schmitt is to go back to right field and Krueger will again appear on the lineup. Eddie Johnson probably will play short.

Get New Pitcher

The Independents will not have Repernfuss as hurler Sunday in the booster game with Combined Larks at the city league grounds but have signed up Bill Hess instead.

Both teams claim the independent championship of this section and the game will decide which team is superior. Zink is to catch for the Electrics and "Shorty" Wenzel, also a Kaukauna product, is backstop for the Larks squad. Smith is on their pitching force. He has been offered a job as a professional pitcher but has refused because of his college work.

The lineup for Sunday will be: Hess, p. Zink, c. Pleshek, 1b. Nagan, 2b. Melchior, ss. Gantter, 3b. Spindler, lf. Gehl, cf. Poca, rf. Ristau and Jones, utility.

SHEBOYGAN WETS WIN FIRST MOVE

Sheboygan, Wis.—Saloon keepers of Sheboygan won the first round of the fight against the new state prohibition enforcement act in Municipal court on Friday before Judge John C. Meyer, himself a saloon keeper, when he ruled that no special bond as provided for in their cases, would be required, and all were released on regular bond of $500 following pleas of not guilty and adjournment of their cases.

When the first case came up District Attorney Charles Voigt informed the court that a special bond requiring two bondsmen was required with further provision that the men must sign a guarantee that the defendants will not sell liquor in violation of the law during the time they are on bail.

"That law does not repeal other statutes relating to criminal offenses and I ask that the regular bond be ordered," announced Attorney Dennis T. Phalen, who with Attorney Theodore Benfey, appeared for all saloon keepers charged with having screens in front of their places or maintaining standing bars.

District Attorney Voigt secured a copy of the law and read it to the court.

"I order a bond of $500," Judge Meyer ruled, and all bonds were accordingly made out in the usual manner.

Want

—the fear of want blights many a life and home. Saving for security is surely a duty to one's self.

It is likewise a duty to those who are depending on you for life and happiness.

Those who do not fear want because they have a snug savings balance in the First National Bank are bound to be more happy, healthy and efficient than those who feel insecure about tomorrow.

SCOUTS TO START FOR CAMP MONDAY

Final Instructions Were Given Boys at Rally Friday Evening.

Final camping instructions were given the boy scouts at a rally conducted by the camping committee in the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening. All of the 60 youngsters who had enrolled were there, with eyes shining and ears open to catch every word. The boys are busy Saturday packing their sea chests ready to be loaded on the supply truck.

One of the older scouts was assigned to each tent as leader. He will have charge of his group and will be responsible for the neatness of the tent and surrounding grounds. There will be seven boys to a tent. Companionships were disregarded in assigning groups, because the camping committee believes acquaintance with new friends will aid in assuring congeniality, and the competition will be stronger in various contests.

Campers are to leave Monday morning in automobiles provided by Appleton people. The baggage will be collected at a central point Saturday and loaded on a truck furnished by Herman J. Thoreson, ready to depart Monday.

The enrollment of the camp and tent grouping includes:

Did You Pick Your Own Telephone Number Or Was It Wished On You?

Business Houses Permitted to Choose Phone Numbers But It Isn't Often That They Can Have What They Want—How Numbers Are Picked.

How did you get your telephone number?

Thomas F. Garland, manager of the Wisconsin Telephone Co., throws some interesting light on the question.

You may have received your telephone number by special request, by succession in business or by chance. That is, your number may be a matter of chance as far as you are concerned.

It is hard to secure a number by special request. Only business firms are given this privilege. Even then it is not always possible to accommodate all applicants. Business firms usually ask for short numbers for the sake of telephone number to accompany him to his new abode. Of course there's a bare chance that Mr. Salesman may get his old number here and because he knows there is a bare chance, he applies for it.

A telephone number is sometimes received by succession in business, that is by one person or firm buying the business of another. Sometimes the old telephone number is a real asset to the new management. Suppose Mr. B's telephone number is 1001 and Mr. B. has a large patronage. When Mr. B's customers want anything he sells they call 1001. Now if Mr. A. buys the business of Mr. B. it is quite natural for Mr. B's old customers to continue calling 1001.

Don't Want To Change A coincidence here which was brought about by special request is the telephone number of the local Elks which corresponds with the number of their lodge which is 337. The convenience and because they know a "catchy" number is easily remembered by their customers. It sometimes happens that individuals and business places ask for the same number but if this happens, the business place is given precedence.

If two business places ask for the same number, which has sometimes happened, then the number is given to the first applicant. So far there never has been a "tie" in filing requests for numbers at the Appleton exchange so there is no precedent to govern proceedings should this happen, which is only a very remote possibility. If the request for a certain number is filed and that number has already been assigned, the only possibility of ever securing it is by the person holding that number discontinuing telephone is never used number will be assigned to the first applicant upon issuance of a new telephone directory. The number of a discontinued telephone is never used again until a new directory is issued.

Carry "Reserve" Numbers This makes it necessary for the telephone exchange to keep many "reserve" numbers always on hand to accommodate new subscribers or to give more telephones to firms asking an extension of service.

Very few individuals make requests for special telephone numbers for private service, Mr. Garland said. Those who do are usually people who are moving to Appleton from some other city. For instance, Samuel Salesman moves here from Milwaukee. Down there, his telephone number was 777 and he has had that number so long that it has become a fixed part of his daily life so he asks for the same number here. Chances are though, he can't be accommodated because he broke all "home ties" when he left Milwaukee and Fate, to make the break complete, usually refuses to allow even his old number.

Superintending teachers of Outagamie county, Misses Genevieve Collar and Nellie McDermott of Hortonville, will enter upon their new duties next Monday. Until the rural schools open their time will be occupied in making a survey of the work and laying out plans for the year.

HOW MANY RATS DO YOU FEED?

There are more rats than human beings. Each of us supports two or three of these pests. They are permanent, uninvited guests in our premises.

It costs the United States $300,000,000 a year to feed its rat population.

In return for our hospitality they waste our substance, bring us a choice assortment of diseases, and scatter filth.

We do little to combat them. Haphazard trapping and poisoning are not effective. The war against them must be systematic, organized, scientific.

The Department of Agriculture has made an exhaustive study of this subject and has printed the results in a 24-page booklet with illustrations.

Send for this authoritative bulletin and learn how to get rid of these annoying and destructive pests.

This is a free Government bulletin, and there is no charge except two cents in stamps for return postage.

M'GRAW TRADED HIMSELF OUT OF THIS YEAR'S PENNANT

NEW YORK BOSS
LOADED UP WITH
WHITE ELEPHANTS

Fans Are Laughing at Fighting
Jawn for Getting Stung in Trades.

By United Press Leased Wire
New York—John McGraw, czar of the New York Giants, has the reputation of being a daring trader who will go the limit to win a pennant. He is one of the few managers of the major leagues who figures only on today reaping his money and prestige to get a club for tomorrow. McGraw made such drastic moves this year for a championship that he has wrecked his team. Instead of getting a pennant for himself, he looks at the present time to have thrown it away. New York fans are bemoaning the trades that brought "Irish" Meusel, "Red" Casper and Casey Stengel to the Giant fold with all the vengeance that the Pittsburgh and Boston fans protested at the trades several weeks ago. It was then charged openly that the wealthy Giants were buying the pennant by outbidding the other clubs that wanted Meusel. McGraw, although he was not in need of an outfielder, bought Meusel, the long distance cloutier of the Phils for Walker, a promising young outfielder. Henline, a good young catcher and a cash sum said to have been between $50,000 and $75,000. Fans Disappointed Meusel has been a terrible disappointment in a Giant uniform. Not only has he forgotten to hit but he has been even less than an ordinary worker in the field. To make room for him, McGraw had to move Burns over to center field and the efficiency of the whole left side of the garden has been impaired. Casper has been useless with a sore arm and the fans are laughing at McGraw claiming that his ailment was known all season. Casey Stengel is not in shape to play and earns his salary from the coaching line. In exchange for them, McGraw gave a wealth of good young talent, which might have developed into just the players he will want next season. McGraw needs pitchers if he wants to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the flag. He needs them right now. He has the money to get them but they're not on the market and trades are over now for season.

McGraw, although he was not in need of an outfielder, bought Meusel, the long distance cloutier of the Phils for Walker, a promising young outfielder. Henline, a good young catcher and a cash sum said to have been between $50,000 and $75,000. Fans Disappointed Meusel has been a terrible disappointment in a Giant uniform. Not only has he forgotten to hit but he has been even less than an ordinary worker in the field. To make room for him, McGraw had to move Burns over to center field and the efficiency of the whole left side of the garden has been impaired. Casper has been useless with a sore arm and the fans are laughing at McGraw claiming that his ailment was known all season. Casey Stengel is not in shape to play and earns his salary from the coaching line. In exchange for them, McGraw gave a wealth of good young talent, which might have developed into just the players he will want next season. McGraw needs pitchers if he wants to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the flag. He needs them right now. He has the money to get them but they're not on the market and trades are over now for season.

Plot For Movie Thriller

By Charley Doremán
San Francisco—Page the movie scenario writers! Here's a plot for a thriller. The Salt Lake Bees blew into San Francisco with only one catch, Byrd Lynn. Lynn dislocated his shoulder. Gavy Cravath donned the shin guards and wind pad to fill the breach. He made a costly error. Up in the stands sat Charley Doremán, 20-year-old semi-pro catcher. He saw the plight of the Bees. He rushed to the club-house, donned a uniform and came to the rescue. Cravath, famous slugger in his time didn't let the kid bat in the pinch. Cravath was an easy out. Doremán went behind the bat in the third inning. He caught like a vet. In the fourth he came to bat with the score 2 to 1 in favor of Frisco. A runner was on second. A hit would tie the score. With the count two and one on him, he sailed the ball over an out-fielder's head, pulling up on second. The tying run crossed the plate. He scored the winning run a minute later. Going back behind the bat he stopped the Seals dead on the bases, throwing a runner out at third. Joe Engle, scout for the Washington Americans, was in the stands. After the game he signed Doremán to a big league contract. The kid caught a train for Washington.

Athlete Developers

St. Mary College, California, rivals Holy Cross university in developing big league chowder. Holy Cross has turned out such players as Jack Barry, Bill Kerrigan, Sockalexis, Joe Dugan, Rosy Ryan, Jigger Strz and others. Joe Oeschger, Walter Mails, Duffy Lewis, Harry Hooper, Dutch Leonard, Louis Gusto, Harry Krause and others hail from St. Mary's. The New England school has the money and the coaching. The California institution has the climate, the talent and the pep.

A. G. Hill, the British middle distance runner, is considering hanging up his spikes without trying again to crack the world's mile record. A short time ago he came within a fraction of a second of Norman Taber's record time. If there is a miller of the present crop who can beat Taber's mark, it is Hill. Right now he is at the peak of his form. He ought to take a flier at attaining greatness before quitting.

After Benny Leonard hurt his thumb training for Lew Tindler who got the lucky break, meaning that the Philadelphia southpaw would have been knocked into oblivion if the bout had not been postponed. Confidence is a fine thing. Every body needs a lot of it. But modest confidence is preferable to bragging.

The New York Yanks may be slower than some other clubs in Ban Johnson's circus. They may be dumber than the Speakerites, the Red Sox and the Tigers. They may not be in harmony with their manager, Miller Huggins. But, brethren, they sure can hit the well-known apple and they are the most interesting team in the circuit to watch. Color counts.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory will play a different game with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen in the National woman's singles championship than she showed against the French girl abroad. The wonderful little Suzanne taught her the lesson when she defeated the American star. Suzanne handled the game in such a way that Mrs. Mallory literally defeated herself by her own errors. The French girl was steady and patient. Molla was over-anxious and impatient.

Kid Chemical has failed as a solution to baseball gloss trouble. American League umpires have notified Ban Johnson that the powder prepared by a Philadelphia chemist is the bunk. Meanwhile pitchers are using the well known dirt to scour off the pill to make it easier to grip, although it isn't official. The powder packs the seams and makes the ball waver than ever for pitchers to control, umpires say. "Back to the soil" is the slogan of the pitchers and the umpires.

The local court of the Catholic Order of Foresters has accepted the challenge of the DeSoto court of Chicago for a game of baseball to be played in Cub's park, Chicago, Sunday, Aug. 22. J. B. Langenberg, manager said the lineup of the team will be announced within the next few days. The players will leave for Chicago Saturday afternoon, Aug. 27, and will be accompanied by a delegation of rooters. The visitors will represent the largest court in Wisconsin, 711 members, while the DeSoto court represents the largest court in Illinois, over 800 members.

Yesterday's hero: Burleigh Grimes filled the bases in two innings with three passes but allowed only one run, the Robins beating the Giants 3 to 1, 3 to 1. The Pirates increased their lead in the National league race by beating Chicago for the third straight time 12 to 3. Babe Ruth hit his forty-fourth homer but the Yankees lost to the Athletics 8 to 6 and dropped into second place. Cleveland went out in front beating the White Sox 6 to 1. Red Faber was knocked out of the box while Cleveland breezed through. The Braves' pennant hopes got a bust when the Phils took two from them 10 to 5 and 4 to 0. Scott started both games and Smith finished both for Philadelphia. Greaz fielding by Bobby Jones saved Leonard from a bad beating but the Tigers lost to the Browns 3 to 1. The Reds made it three straight over the Cardinals with a 4 to 2 win. Bohne again was the star of the day.

The first "bear" story of the football season has ushered forth from Illinois. Jack Carney, pikskin chaser extraordinaire, and a member of Walter Camp's mythical All American team, went out on legs on the gridiron this fall. He has been operated on for a torn ligament in his knee and it will be impossible for him to get in shape in time for the conference games. If this is the case, it will be a stiff blow to Zuppke because Carney was just about as nifty a football player as ever participated in a Big Ten gridiron fracas. They are beginning to think of world series games in Pittsburgh and it looks as if the dreams of the Smoke-town fans will come true. The Pirates are travelling fast and look like sure winners of the National league flag.

Several weeks ago the Royals invaded the local diamond but were defeated by the Merchants by a score of 5 to 3. The Kaukaunites will work hard to make a better showing this time, they say. Batteries for the Merchants will be Turner and Schabow and for the Royals, Henningson and Chozki.

Determined to retaliate for the defeat inflicted upon them earlier in the season, the Kaukauna Royals will meet West-Ed Merchants in a baseball battle at Brandt park at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

ALL IS NOT GLOOM THAT GLOOMETH

OLDEST CHARITY IS STILL GOING STRONG
 Association for Aid of Poor Is Taking Care of Hundreds of Families.

By Alice Robe
 Special to Post-Crescent.

New York—Johnny and his mother, his five brothers and sisters lived in an east side tenement.

"All day the gas burns and our windows are up against the wall. It's so hot we nearly die," said Johnny's mother when they had brought her back from curing her of pneumonia at the hospital.

Then this family was suddenly transferred from the teeming airless tenement to Sea Breeze, the A. I. C. P. home for women and children on Staten Island.

Transformed
 And now you ought to see Johnny and the rest of the family!

You would never know them. Nor would you recognize all the other children and women of the tenements, the poor of New York who are rescued and turned into helpful citizens by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Human waste turned into human worth.
 Happiness transmuted from misery. Health wrought from disease.

Secret of Success
 What is the secret to the success of the oldest organized civic charity, which for 77 years has been treating conditions as well as individuals?

It's maintaining the family ties—keeping the individual child with the mother, emphasizing the value of the home.

So when Johnny went to Sea Breeze it was with his mother. Of course, all the family got well and strong again.

But Johnny and all the other little children and their mothers are not sent away for a mere summer outing. The whole family life has been watched and studied before they are sent away and they are watched afterward.

No dribbling out of scattered relief. A few cases properly cared for rather than promiscuous, though kindly, charity.

ARTIST SEARLES IN PECK OF TROUBLE

Inherits Five Millions and No Girl Wants to Take Away Two Million.

(Special to Post-Crescent)

Boston—It's "Easy come, easy go" in the case of Albert Victor Searles.

Searles is an artist.

But he hadn't won much fame or money by working at art when his eccentric multi-millionaire, the late Edwin P. Searles, died. The uncle left the young man only $250,000, with a proviso that if he should contest the will, he wouldn't get even this much. The bulk of the fortune he bequeathed to his private secretary.

But the artist took a chance, got a lawyer, and obtained a settlement out of court which netted him $5,000,000.

Wife Gets Divorce

Meanwhile Mrs. Searles sued for divorce, alleging nonsupport.

And got an award of $140,000 alimony.

This is to be delivered, together with her final decree of divorce, in October.

And now comes Miss Mary Johnson, who is a musician and an artist, too.

Besides this, she has a reputation for pouring a cup of tea superior to any brewed this side of England.

In fact, she was keeping a tea room at Portsmouth during the war, when Searles had quit the palette for the drawing board, and was copying plans for Uncle Sam in the shipyard.

Plot Thickens

One day who should step into the tea room but Mr. Searles?

Over their tea the artists talked of the days when the war would be over and they both could go back to Art with a capital A.

"He proposed after three days," says Miss Johnson. "I accepted—for I saw in the young artist more than the ordinary observer would see."

"Of course, I never dreamed but what he was single. So I was dreadfully shocked when he came to me a few months later and confessed that he had deceived me."

"But he said that a divorce was being obtained and that after everything was straightened out we would be married. I forgave him all—and waited for him to make good his promises. But he has not done so."

"So I am suing."

Two million dollars—count 'em, two hundred, two thousand, two hundred thousand, two million—is all she asks.

Searles is out of reach of process servers. They can't get his address. His lawyer says he is in the south seas, fitting out a yacht—and the lawyer denies all of Miss Johnson's charges, from start to finish.

"Mr. Searles became acquainted with her," he says, "but he thought she was engaged all the time to a naval officer."

TOY CO. ELECTS NEW DIRECTORS

A new board of directors was elected by stockholders of the Toy Company of America at an adjourned annual meeting in the company's offices

Friday evening. Those named were C. L. Wiggin, Frank B. Whiting, Neenah paper manufacturer, H. A. Glou-demans, Frank Groh and Fred Felix Wettengel.

C. L. Wiggin was reelected president and general manager of the company. Mr. Whiting was named vice president, Mr. Groh treasurer, and Mr. Wettengel secretary. These men are to hold office until the next annual meeting in January, 1922.

President Wiggin's report showed that the company is gaining prestige rapidly among toy buyers of the country. Growth of the company has surpassed expectations. There are 57 persons on the payroll and more are to be added. The present factory facilities have been found inadequate and arrangements are to be made for additional manufacturing space.
